Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 08 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Some clear spells overnight. Further rain on Friday.

This Evening and Tonight:
A cloudy start to the evening, but cloud thinning in places to give some clearer spells. Cloud thickening from the north through the early hours with a spot of rain possible in the north by dawn. Minimum temperature 3 deg C (37 deg F).

Friday:
A bright start in the south, with sunny spells in any cloud breaks. Rain and cloud then pushes south through the morning, with some breaks developing later in the afternoon. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Cold over the weekend, with a chance of occasionally wintry showers or longer spells of rain and widespread overnight frosts. Drier and milder through Monday but chilly overnight.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.